There's obviously a lot of white space here, meaning you could fill the resume with more stuff. Just make sure it meaningfully relates to the requirements for a tech job. This could include:

- More details on your projects
- Any special educational awards or accolades you've received
- Job details that highlight delivering results, working independently, solving problems, etc.
- Volunteer positions that demonstrate the same things

Use the full page, but don't "pad" your resume! It's very easy to tell which accomplishments are meaningful to the position and which are just taking up space!
